In East and Southeast Asia in West Asia (Middle East), the United States built an alliance system called the South-East Asian Treaty Organisation (SEATO) and the Central Treaty Organisation (CENTO). Many newly independent countries were worried of losing their freedom. Cracks and splits within the alliances were quick to appear. Communist China quarrelled with the USSR towards the late 1950s. The other important development was the Non-Aligned Movement (NAM). The smaller countries were of more help to the superpowers because they were the means to gain vital resources such as oil ad minerals; locations to spy each other and to launch weapons. Arenas of the Cold War The arenas of the Cold War refer to areas where crisis and war occurred or threatened to occur between the alliance systems but did not cross limits. The Cold War was also responsible for several shooting wars. The two superpowers were poised for direct encounter in Korea (1950-53), Berlin (1958-62), the Congo (the early 1960s) and in several other places. Jawaharlal Nehru, one of the key leaders of NAM played a key role in mediating between the two Koreas. In the Congo crisis, the UN Secretary General played a key mediatory role. The US and USSR decided to collaborate in limiting or eliminating certain kinds of nuclear and non-nuclear weapons. The two sides signed three significant agreements within a decade. These were : Limited Test Ban Treaty (LTBT), Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT), Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty (ABMT) Challenge to Bipolarity Non-Aligned Movement (NAM) offered the newly decolonised countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America a third option i.e. not to join any of the alliances. NAM was founded by three leaders-YugoslaviaęÁÁs Josip Broz Tito, IndiaęÁÁs Jawaharlal Nehru and EgyptęÁÁs leader Gamal Abdel Nasser. IndonesiaęÁÁs Sukarno and GhanaęÁÁs Kwame Nkrumah strongly supported them. The first NAM summit was held in 1961 at Belgrade.
